ENDOCRINOLOGY UPDATE FOR PRIMARY CARE

Friday & Saturday

January 4-5, 2019

University of Washington Campus
HUB North Ballroom
Seattle, WA

Sponsored by UW School of Medicine
Division of Metabolism, Endocrinology & Nutrition
Office of Continuing Medical Education

TARGET AUDIENCE

This course is designed for primary care providers including family practice physicians, internists, physician assistants, advanced nurse practitioners, nurses and anyone with interest in endocrine and diabetes care.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This is a comprehensive 1.5 day course on principles of endocrinology and diabetes geared towards primary care providers. There is an ongoing immense need for education in these areas as there have been vast changes in the field of endocrinology over the past decade. Primary care providers often are faced with diagnosing many endocrine conditions such as thyroid disorders, treatment of calcium disorders, osteoporosis as well as diabetes and obesity. This course aims to provide a broad update on current strategies in endocrine disease management. Highlighted offerings on day one include plenary lectures on management of thyroid nodules, osteoporosis update and workshops with interactive case management discussions. Current issues on transgender care, management of obesity with a half day focus on diabetes and obesity. This part of the program will provide timely information on new clinical trial data and address use of new therapeutic strategies in diabetes.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Upon completion of this activity, attendees should be able to:

- Recognize and treat common thyroid disorders
- Interpret abnormal thyroid function tests
- Discuss diagnosis and treatment of calcium disorders and osteoporosis
- Appropriately care for transgender individuals
- Recognize the role of medication in the management of obesity
- Discuss new therapeutics and cost issues in treatment of diabetes
